On 16 April 1947 President Leo Skrzypczynski of the Central Administration for Industry received verbal instructions from K. I. Koval, Marshal Sokolovsky's deputy for economic questions, to prepare production plans for the third quarter of 1947, instead of for the second half of 1947 as had previously been ordered. Koval said the instructions were changed on account of the uncertain political situation and the doubts as to future deliveries from the western zones.
